NOTICES

Due to the lack of storage space, the library can no longer keep the backfiles of certain periodical publications. These periodicals are now being offered to faculty and a listing of the issues available has been sent out. Requests for the back issues will be treated on a first come, first serve basis and they should be directed to the Richmond Library.

MEETINGS

Return to Learning students meeting Sept. 28 - 12-2 p.m.

The counsellors have planned an informal gathering of each campus for students who have returned to learning after being out of school three or more years. The purpose of this meeting is to help these students meet with each other and with faculty; to acquaint them with the various services and programs available at the college or elsewhere, and to hear other students who have returned to learning and what it has meant to them.

All faculty and staff members are invited to drop in at any time from 12 - 2 PM. If you know any student or prospective student who could profit from this experience, please encourage them to attend.

Locations:

Surrey, Student Development Centre
Room 250

New Westminster, 4-room complex
Room 210-212

Richmond, Room 105

See you there, Thursday, September 28th, 12 - 2 PM.

Open College Committee

The second meeting of the Open College Committee will be held at Surrey in Room S.250 at 12 noon, Wednesday, September 27th, at which time five different models of the Open College will be presented.

Any interested faculty or student members are invited to attend.

Sheilah Thompson

WEATHER

REPORT

Long-range weather forecast for Vancouver and vicinity - valid to Sunday, October 1

Mostly clear, cold weather is expected over the lower mainland for the next two days as a large Arctic high-pressure area moves southward through central B.C. A moderating trend will appear over the weekend as warmer Pacific air, accompanied by clouds and showers, reaches the coast.

Temperatures will average approximately 10 degrees below normal with frost at night. The cold weather of the past 10 days has broken a number of low-temperature records at numerous locations. For example, Tofino, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, recorded an all-time low of 33°F for the month. What did the late Dominic Charlie say about an early winter!

COMMENT

An overview of job opportunities in British Columbia to 1980

Most of the province's workers are in industries producing services, i.e. education, health care, trade, government, transportation and public utilities, or banking and finance. The production of goods - raising food crops, construction, logging, mining, fishing and manufacturing, requires only about one third of the work force and this proportion has been declining. Job growth during the 1970's is expected to continue to be faster in the service-producing industries, than in the goods-producing industries. By 1980, there should be an increase from 569,000 employees on the payrolls of service industries in B.C. to an estimated 660,000. This represents an increase of over 90,000 new jobs in the next 8 years. Since service industries employ a relatively high proportion of women, it seems probable that the expansion of job opportunities in the decade ahead will be favourable for women.

By the year 1980, the goods-producing industries are expected to show an employment gain of 53,000 jobs. Agriculture and fishing will actually show a decline of 6,000 jobs. Mining and forestry will show an increase of 9,000 jobs, despite a very considerable expansion of output during the same period. Manufacturing should show an increase of 10,000 jobs. Employment in the construction sector should increase by an additional 30,000 jobs.

Many individual occupations are expected to show large employment increases over the next five to ten years. These are: accounting, conservation and environmental control, counselling, physicians and other medical specialists, dentists, dental hygienists and assistants, nursing assistants and aides, therapists, industrial engineers, engineering, medical and science technicians, architects, planners and related occupations, computer programmers, systems analysts, bank officers, office appliance operators, computer operators, stenographers and secretaries, typists, insurance and real estate salesmen, sales clerks, chefs and cooks, hairdressers, hospital attendants, waiters and waitresses, protective service occupations, police, probation, guards, etc., carpenters, brick-layers and masons, plumbers and pipefitters, motor vehicle mechanics, maintenance electricians, maintenance mechanics, instrument repairmen, millwrights, welders, aircraft mechanics, business machine servicemen, autobody repairmen, and operating engineers.

Day Care Society

Faculty, staff and students at the Surrey Campus by now will know that Douglas College finally has a day care center. The center opened Sept. 5th. and enrolls children of students, staff and faculty as well as some children from the community.

Head Supervisor is Mrs. Kay Britton who comes to the center with a rich background in child care programs. Kay was one of the first graduates of the training program at Langara. Her assistant, Mrs. Kathleen Richardson trained in England and Quebec before coming to western Canada.

Both Kay and Kathleen have had many questions about the center from interested students and faculty, and Kay has agreed to answer some of these questions for the Mad Hatter. So - answers to questions and comments "about that Day Care Center over by the greenhouse..."

"Can I leave my child just for an hour or two once a week?"

Day Care Centres are licensed to provide half day or full day care for children. Anyone who uses the centre 20 hours or less per week is classified as a half time child and the family pays half fees. If you want maximum growth and enrichment for your pre-schooler, then you want him accepted into his peer group. It's hard for all of us to continually an outsider...that's what happens when a child is not with his group often enough to "get in".

"Eighty Dollars a month! How come it is so expensive?"

Good day care centers, hiring fully qualified supervisors, charge between $75.00 and $85.00 monthly to provide care for children ten hours a day. Like anything else, if you pay less, you get less. The greatest part of the fees pay the supervisor's salaries. Regulations regarding number of supervisors and necessary equipment are set by the provincial government. Other costs include equipment, building expenses, supplies. If a family can't afford the fees, government subsidies are available, but at present costs of day care for families with adequate incomes are not underwritten by the government.

"Is it the College's own center?"

The center at Douglas College was created by interested people in response to requests from students, staff and faculty. They formed a society and met the necessary requirements to obtain an operating license. This Society is the operating body for the center and has been incorporated as a non-profit group. It is made up of community people, faculty, staff and students who volunteer their time and talents. The Society has the full support of the College Council. With the exception of grants or gifts, the center is dependent upon enrollment for operating costs. Many day care centers in B.C. operate as non-profit societies and are able to be self-supporting.

"I'd love to drop in and play with the kids."

It sounds like fun, but children don't really need adults to play with them. In our group of children, we hope eventually to help them play with each other creatively, and constructively, with full regard for each other's rights and needs. Our goal for each child is to develop a strong and positive regard for himself as a worthwhile person. All projects within the programme - art, crafts, science, music, language, literature, social and cultural learnings are designed to achieve this goal.

Volunteers are welcome and needed, but we would expect to help a volunteer feel competent by having an orientation before being introduced to the children.

A final note or two from Kay. The Centre is not licensed to accept children unless they are already registered so they cannot accept a child who is just "dropped off".

She would also appreciate the clear area behind the Centre kept free of cars since it is the drop-off and pick-up area for students using the service.

DEPARTMENTS

Continuing Education Appointment -

Counselling Department

Through a dazzling display of financial footwork, Sheilah Thompson has baffled Bill Day's attempts to forestall the appointment of a Department Continuing Education Programmer until September, 1973.

We are happy to announce the appointment of Ann Frost as Interim Programmer for the Fall and Spring Semesters. This appointment will enable a number of Community Projects planned by the Counselling Department to be followed through.

The position will be formally advertised next Spring, by which time the Counselling Department will have had enough experience to define the job with some precision.

George
George C. Wootton, Principal.

English and Communications - Department Appointment

For health reasons, Jean Proven has resigned her position as Continuing Education Programmer for the Department of English and Communications, and has taken up regular teaching duties this Fall.

Pending a Department review of present role and future developments of the English Department, John Isaak has agreed to take over Programming duties for the Fall.

It is expected that by Christmas time, definite plans for development and future Programming activities will be announced.

Bill Day.

CONTINUING EDUCATION

LIASON WITH UNIVERSITY WOMENS CLUBS...

Last November Sheilah Thompson and I invited representatives from the University Womens Clubs in our College Districts to meet with us. Our idea was that we would introduce ourselves to them, acquaint them with the College's presence and functions, and hopefully, to spark some interest in College activities.

We seem to have struck a fairly responsive chord. As of this moment, we are working co-operatively with University Womens Clubs in the following areas:
Delta - Tsawwassen: This group currently sponsoring Dr. Len Sampson's series on "Journey into the People's Republic of China" with us, and has expressed a desire to support the College in other ways during this year.

Richmond: Our non-credit series "Oh! Canada" is being held in co-operation with the University Women's Club of Richmond, who have undertaken the task of publicizing this programme, and assisting in other ways as well.

Langley: I have been invited to talk to this group on Sept. 28th, to explain what the College has to offer them, particularly what is pertinent to women. They also want to learn what they can do for the College in the coming year.

Coquitlam: A series has been organized by the Coquitlam group, in co-operation with the Coquitlam School Board entitled "Living in the Sixties". They have asked us to talk in Port Coquitlam on October 25th on the "Changing World of Women."

This probably grows directly out of our initial meeting with these groups last fall. If there are any persons at the College who have ideas or projects that they would like to bring to the attention of these groups, Sheilah and I would be pleased to know.
